Of course, we did not have indoor plumbing, nor did we have electricity. We either had an out-house, or none at all. It was either Sears & Roebuck Catalogs, for toilet paper, or if we didn't have an out-house, it was leaves and twigs. O.K., you asked for it. We had wood floors, Mama scrubbed them with a broom, and the water ran through the cracks in the floor. No telephones, but we got our first radio when we moved to Menard. I was 12 or 13.

6. We didn't have many items in our house. The one thing I remember later on was a round oak dining table. Bubba, Ruth and I sat around it and sang all the time. I sang tenor, he sang alto, and Ruth sang soprano. He tried so hard to get us to let him teach us how to play the piano, but we would not let him. I regret that.

7. Daddy saw my Mother for the first time, and said she was the prettiest thing he ever saw. I don't know where they met. I will try to find out.
