

12. Dado called her Mother, and other people called her Dovie, Mrs. Keith, Aunt. Dovie. Billy Jackson called her Aunt Dovie Lee.
13. We lived in West when I was 11 and 12, for a year. That year, Dallas had the Fair, but it was called Pan American Exposition. We had 2 teachers in the school. Harvey Sutton and Ira Pearson. They took a bunch of us to it, on the train. ~~Mamma~~^{my mother} picked enough Cotton to make the $12 it took for us to go (A. Ruth & me). We had a wonderful time on the train, singing, and while we were there. ~~Mamma~~^{Mudder} was always sacrificing herself for us to do something.
14. I didn't know my grandmothers, so I have no idea what they were like.
15. Daddy was an easy going man. Everyone took advantage of him. My Mother had to step in a lot and be the strong one. Daddy had asthma. He would cough all night, and get up at 3 or 4 to deliver milk. I remember one 4th of July, we had no money for fireworks, so Daddy got a broom, wrapped it in a tow sack (churlap) lit it, and threw it in the air. It was very pretty.
